

Luther Russell

Medium Cool

"Luther Russell is a joy to listen to and a joy to play with. He understands something in music that should never be explained."

—Robyn Hitchcock

Luther Russell is a songwriter, producer and multi-instrumentalist who was born in Los Angeles, CA. He has worked with Robyn Hitchcock, Jody Stephens of Big Star (as part of their duo, Those Pretty Wrongs), and written songs with Weezer for their Grammy Nominated White Album. As a solo artist he has released an eclectic series of albums, culminating in 2018's highly-praised two-CD retrospective, entitled Selective Memories: An Anthology on Hanky Panky Records, and SoCal's own underground sensation, Burger Records. His music has been featured on NBC, ABC, CBS, HBO and Showtime.

Luther's sixth studio album, Medium Cool, will be released on LP and CD on February 22 via Fluff and Gravy Records. Luther likes to describe the record as "a rough rock & roll album, roughly about rock & roll", though, in many ways this album is a kind of lament for the heyday of rock 'n' roll radio. Thankfully, Luther's version of a 'lament' these days appears to be plugging in the guitar, cranking up the amp and blasting out his thoughts and feelings straight to tape.

Luther was joined by Derek Brown of the Eels on drums for this project, and Liam Hayes of Plush makes a rare appearance, playing guitar on the poignant elegy, "Blue Balloon".

Both the album and the single, "The Sound of Rock and Roll", will be available separately on cassette via Burger Records.

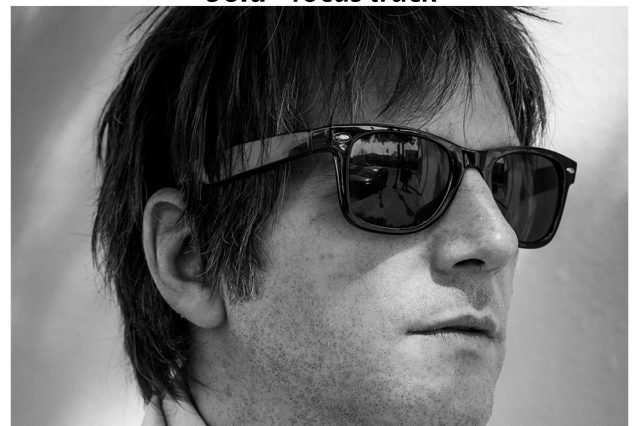

Release Date: February 22, 2019
